Beef Farm - Cattle - Animal care

David starts to take his cattle in to the shed in September. The first to come in are the cattle he is fattening up to go to the abattoir. The dry cows, the ones who are having a break before they have calves in the spring are taken in around December. All cows have one calf per year from when they are two years old until they are twelve. The cattle are checked every day to make sure they are healthy and will be treated if they are sick.
